SATURDAY MORNING, APRIL 2, 1859. DESTRUCTION OF A VILLAGE.

From the Honolulu Advertiser. WAINES, HAWAII, Feb. 4.- Had I the ability, I should like to give a description of the present volcanic eruption; but I am fear-ful of a failure, should the attempt be made. When one has seen the real thing itself, there is no room for the play of the imagination or poetry. You may exhaust language of its most impressive and descriptive terms, and yet fail to reach the reality. I shall attempt no more than to give a few facts. On Sabbath, Jan, 23d, volcanic smoke was seen gathering

In the evening the mountain presented a grand and yet fearful spectacle. Two streams of fire were issuing from two different sources, and flowing, apparently in two different directions. The whole region, earth and heaven, were lighted up, and even the interior of our houses received the lurid volcanic light ven, were lighted up, and even the interior of our houses received the lurid volcanic light containing Wrecking on the Florida Keys, the direct from its source. In the morning of Christian Martyrs of Madagascar, Thackaray's the second day, we could discern where the Virginians, &c., 25 cents. Subscriptions received, the second day, we could discern where the eruptions were. One appeared to be very Weekly, $1. Just published, and for sale by near the top of the mountain, but its stream and smoke soon after disappeared. The other was on the North side, further below the top, and was sending out its fires in a North-westerly direction.

On the second and third nights the dense smoke and clouds prevented us from having a fair view of Pele's doings; but on the four following nights we had a view-and such a scene! It seemed as though the eye could never weary in gazing at it. The burning crater seemed to be constantly enlarging and throwing up its volumes of liquid fire above the mouth of the crater-I will not venture to say how high-and the fiery stream rolled onward and onward, still adding grandeur onward and onward, still adding grandeur our Musical Friend, No. 17, contains the Wan-and terror as it proceeded, till on the morning of the 31st, about sunrise, the stream was Strauss, and the Cradle Song as sung by Jenny compelled, though rejuctiontly, to stop by meeting the waters of the ocean. Even then All the its resistless and opposing energy carried it on some distance into the sea.

The poor inhabitants of Wainanalii, the name of the village where the fire reached the ocean, were aroused at the midnight hour by the hissing and roaring of the approaching fire, and had but just time to save themselves. Some of the houses of the inland portion of the village were partly surrounded before the inmates were aware of their danger .-Wainanalii is near the Northern boundary of North Kona and about twelve or fourteen miles from Kawaihae. It is, of course, all destroyed, and its pleasant little harbor all filled with lava. The volcanic stream was one mile wide or more in some places, and much less in others. It crossed the Kona road and interrupted the mail communication. The whole distance of the flow from the crater to the sea, is some forty miles.

Last night (the 3d Feb.,) the volcano was in full blast, and the burning stream seems to have taken another direction. Parties have gone out to-day to see and explore. Perhaps on their return I shall have something additional to communicate. Yours,

THE SKUNK SKIN TRAFFIC.

The odor of the skunk possesses a distinctive property which cannot be mistaken by any whose sense of smell is at all discriminative. During the past few months, those who have perambulated our down town business streets, have repeatedly had their olfactories greeted by this unmistaken perfume, and wondering whence it originated, have at last traced it to the warehouses of our furriers. A few inquiries might have explained the cause of this new accession to the two-andseventy stenches of the metropolis.

The traffic in skunk skins has sudden

The traffic in skunk skins h trade, and the skins of an animal which three years ago were deemed of no value whatever, are now in the greatest demand. They are collected for exportation alone. The principal markets are Russia and Turkey. Persons wishing to purchase a splendid toned, though some are sent to Germany, where they highly finished, and durable piano, call at are sold at large profit, as the fur of the gen-uine "fisher." The black skins are valued the most, and during the past winter the mar-ket price has been as high as $1 per skin, while mottled skins only brought 70 cents .-These prices, however, have recently depreciated considerably, on account of the immense exportation. Upwards of 50,000 of these skins have been shipped from this city alone within the past two months, and one firm in Maiden Lane have now on hand about 18,-000, ready for shipment. These are designed for the Leipsic sales-Leipsic being next to Novgorod, in Russia, the most important fur entrepot in Europe. The first intimation received in this market of the value of this new description of fur, came from the Hudson's Bay Company, which having shipped a few to London at a venture, found the returns so profitable, that they immediately prosecuted the business on an extensive scale and now so large has been the exportation, that a
